A quick, simple walkthrough for setting up your new Desktop Backgrounds and Screensaver Collection. Pick your operating system below and follow along. It only takes a minute or two.

Setting a Desktop Background

Windows 10 / 11

- Open the Desktop Backgrounds folder and find the image you'd like to use.
- Right-click the image file and choose “Set as desktop background.”
- That's it. Your new wallpaper is live. To fine-tune how it fits your screen, right-click your desktop, choose Personalize > Background, and adjust the “Choose a fit” option (Fill, Fit, or Center tend to look best with this artwork).

macOS

- Open the Desktop Backgrounds folder and find the image you'd like to use.
- Right-click (or Control-click) the image and choose “Set Desktop Picture.”
- Alternatively: go to System Settings > Wallpaper, click Add Folder, and select the Desktop Backgrounds folder to cycle through the whole collection automatically.

A note on image size: this artwork is provided at its original resolution. On very large or ultra-wide monitors, choosing “Fill” or “Fit” (rather than “Stretch” or “Tile”) in your display settings will give the most flattering result.

Setting Up Your Screensaver

Windows 10 / 11

- Type “screen saver” into the Start menu search bar and open “Change screen saver.”
- From the dropdown, choose “Photos.”
- Click “Settings,” then “Browse,” and select the Screensaver Collection folder.
- Set your preferred slideshow speed, click Save, then OK to apply.

macOS

- Open System Settings > Screen Saver.

- Choose a photo-slideshow style, then click “Select a folder...” and pick the Screensaver Collection folder.
- Set your hot corners or idle time under Lock Screen settings if you'd like the screensaver to start automatically.
